

I highly recommend Jeffrey-Angelo Construction Co, Inc. ("Jeffrey-Angelo") and it's proprietor Jeff Folino. After interviewing Jeff and speaking to 4 of his references, I selected Jeff over 3 other contractors, even though he was the highest quote I received.

There was a theme from the references and then from the sub-contractors he used. The references called Jeff "anal" while the subs called him an "anal PITA". But the subs meant it in a good way. Jeff is meticulous and notices everything. What I found most interesting was that the subs, (framer, roofer, electrician, plumber, sheetrocker, painter, tiler) all felt that while Jeff wanted things done a specific way, his way enhanced their work and got them additional work from the homeowners after the initial project was completed. All his subs have worked with him for over 10 years, and some have a 30-year relationship with Jeff. The reason they have worked with Jeff that long was that they respect him and feel he values their work.

My project was to gut to the studs the 1,100 sq ft first floor of my bay front property, widen some entry ways and install a new 4-piece bath and full kitchen. Due to the issues found after opening the walls, the project then included new siding, windows and roof. I had planned to have siding done next year anyway so it wasn't a total surprise but had to be done sooner.

Jeff completed the project timely, even with the added extra projects. The quality of the work was second to none. Everyone that has seen my house is blown away by not only the transformation but how much ".....attention to detail that the contractor did...." I cannot find anything where Jeff could have done differently or better. He told me when I interviewed him that he does the work as if it is his house. That is no lie.

The bonus to the quality work was the final overall cost. I had previously gotten quotes for siding and windows, that I planned to do next year. Jeff's estimate was approximately 20% less on those items. At the end of the day, taking all the costs into account, Jeff ended up being the lowest overall cost by thousands of dollars.

The best decision you will ever make on your project is to hire Jeff and let him do his thing. You will not be disappointed.
